SAYS U. S. FAILS TO CURB DRUG TRAFFIC

Doran Submits Report for Past Year to Congress, Smuggling Heavy

Washington Dec 8—Efforts to curb the smuggling of narcotic drugs into United States this year have been futile Prohibition Commissioner J M Doran declared in his annual report today.

Huge supplies are coming into the country through illegitimate channels according to Doran. He attributed the situation to the strong demand for drugs by non medical addicts the resourcefulness of the drug rings and the efficiency of domestic producers and distributors.

The illicit traffic in narcotic drugs smuggled into the country seems not to have abated in any degree Doran said.

"To stop the traffic at ports and borders is admittedly difficult if not impossible with the present facilities available. The progress of efforts to secure international cooperation relating to an efficient measure of control is seemingly quite slow."

During the year 6342 ounces of drugs were seized. Convictions of those charged with drug law violations numbered 1778 the usual high percentage of convictions. Legitimate imports included 140,172 pounds of opium and 241,282 pounds of cocoa leaves a decrease from last year.

BELIEVE COURT APPEAL LIKELY IN RATE CASE

Officials Predict Logan Gas Co May End Fight Before Commission

NO PROTEST FILED

Time For Exceptions to Valuation Cut Will Expire Dec. 19

Possibility that the Logan Gas Co will not file a protest against the state utilities commissions recent valuation ruling in the gas rate controversy with Marion and other Ohio cities but that an appeal will be made to have the commissioners ruling modified by federal court was indicated at Columbus today.

This opinion was expressed by some state officials when it was stated that the gas company has not filed a protest with the commission although the time limit will expire Dec. 19. Attorneys for the company have not made known their plan of procedure.

Valuation Cut

On Nov. 20 the state utilities commission fixed valuation of the companies property used and useful as a basis for rate fixing at $10,700,077.01. The company had asked for an appraisement of approximately $20,500,000. Should the reduction decision by the commission hold it would probably mean rates lower than those now in effect. Those rates have been protested by Marion and other cities and the matter has been pending before the state commission more than two years.

Possible Procedure

In expressing the opinion that the gas company may not file a protest state officials said that the plan may be to wait until after the commission announces a permanent valuation and fixes a new schedule of rates and then file suit in federal court at Columbus seeking to nullify action of the commission on the claim that the commission's decision amount to practical confiscation of property.

OFFICIALS GUARD AGAINST DISEASE

Scarlet Fever Threat Causes Cancellation of Basketball in Caledonia

Possibility of exposing players and spectators to scarlet fever was responsible for postponing the Waldo Caledonia high school basketball game scheduled at Caledonia last night according to Dr N Sifritt, county health commissioner.

Although only one new case of scarlet fever has developed in Caledonia in the last three weeks the disease has been prevalent there for some time. Reluctance on the part of Waldo school authorities to send their team to Caledonia is said to be partially responsible for the cancellation.

A skin eruption suffered by Warren Timeon, of Caledonia, has been diagnosed as scarlet fever. The youth, however, has not been attending school for several weeks due to an injury received at the beginning of the hunting season.

Although Dr. Sifritt ordered the cage game postponed last night he does not consider the Caledonia scarlet fever situation serious.

Out of the several scarlet fever cases which developed in Caledonia and vicinity, Richard Clinton Gooding, 6, is the only victim to die. His death occurred at his home in the village yesterday.

EATON COUPLE SHOT TO DEATH BY BURGLARS

Countryside Scoured for Assailants of Dr. and Mrs. H. Z. Silver

AWAKENED BY LIGHT

Couple Fired on When Physician Jumps from Bed After Warning

Eaton, Dec 8—A man hunt was under way here today for the burglar or burglars who shot down Dr. and Mrs H Z Silver in their home here early this morning.

Mrs Silver was instantly killed. Dr Silver was taken to Miami Valley hospital at Dayton with two bullet wounds in his chest and abdomen.

Dr Silver underwent an operation for the removal of the two bullets lodged in his chest and abdomen. He failed to rally.

According to information so far gathered by Sheriff Leo Davidson of Preble county Mrs Silver was awakened by a flash light playing in her face as she and her husband reposed in bed at 1:30 o'clock this morning. She screamed arousing Dr Silver, who leaped from the bed and started for the intruder.

Slumps to Floor

Two shots rang out and Dr Silver slumped to the floor with wounds just below the heart and in the stomach. The intruder next turned the gun on Mrs Silver. She died instantly.

Indications that at least two persons were implicated in the shooting were revealed after a first preliminary search of the grounds about the Silver home. Fifteen cartridges from different caliber guns lying on the ground outside the window of the bed room where the shooting occurred.

Neighbors were aroused by the shooting and called police. No trace of the intruder or intruders were found nor was there any way of checking the possible clue taken from the home at an early hour today.

Police and county officials immediately organized a man hunt to scour the vicinity.

Dr Silver is a cousin of Harry Silver who managed Gov Al Smith's campaign.

Different Caliber Bullets

Sheriff Davidson said one of the cartridge shells was ejected from a 38 caliber pistol while the other came from a 32 caliber gun. Whether there were two men, each with one gun, or whether one man used both weapons has not been determined, the sheriff said.

Dr Silver was not alarmed when the first was awakened by the flashlight, believing the flashlight to be in the hands of his 13 year old daughter.

Blinded by the powerful rays of the flashlight he started to rouse himself from the bed when, he told the sheriff, a menacing voice called "Stay where you are; don't come any further."

Disregarding the command the physician leaped from the bed and was immediately shot down. His wife screaming for mercy, fell a victim to slugs from the intruder's gun. She died instantly.

A maze of conflicting reports as to which direction the thug or thugs took hampered Sheriff Davidson in his early investigation.

Detective Orn Slater, famed Cincinnati sleuth, arrived here to take up the case shortly before noon. A hurry call was sent to Dayton police for a finger print expert by Sheriff Davidson, who believed he had found a vital clue.

Harry Sifford fingerprint man of the Dayton police, was reported en route here at noon.

WHARTON NOVEL NOT BRIGHT AS DRAMA

Play "Age of Innocence" Proves Remarkably Static, Says Writer

By RUTH MORRIS
Marion Star Staff Writer

New York, Dec 8—Hailed with the fanfare of a favorite star and a sterling cast, "The Age of Innocence," a dramatization of Edith Wharton's 1870 novel, was ushered into the Empire Theater by Gilbert Miller. For all its movement over a period of 40 years, the Margaret Ayer Barnes dramatization proved remarkably static. It never moved, breathed or had its being on anything but the stage of the Empire.

I can't rightly explain just where the trouble lies, but the fact remains that in transposing the Countess Olenska from paper to papier mache, the playwright did not do right by that gallant lady and her sad moving tale of mis mating and unrequited love. With its heroic sacrifice, the book is grand meat for the theater, but its present chef has served it up unseasoned and lamentably underdone.

There was no sauce in the dialogue in which prissy persons waxed eloquent and made love in the third person singular. It was much more fun to look at the accurate nineteenth century costumes and watch their color and movement, than to listen to the stilted phrases that their wearers were giving utterance to. In our own feeble fashion we're trying to set down that unevening that should have been memorable turned out to be a frightful bore.

You will probably want to see "The Age of Innocence," however because it provides a vehicle for Katherine Cornell, who has long since established herself as one of our leading actresses. Her latest portrayal has caused more paeans of praise to be written and uttered than ever before. And right here is where we commit high treason—for our own reaction was that Miss Cornell was giving a performance far from up to her artistic best. Please don't misunderstand—she can be magnificent, and is—in moments of the Wharton play. But ever so often (far, far too often, in fact) she introduces into true emotionalism a melodramatic exaggeration that in a lesser talent would be rated as absolute "ham."

Ranking far above Miss Cornell's characterization in this reviewer's opinion was that of Arnold Korff whose "Julius Beaufort" seemed fully to realize what telling tragedy may lurk in simplicity and restraint. For a few minutes in the scene at Madame Olenska's little house on West Twenty Third Street, Mr. Korff made an entire theater vibrant with feeling.

She is concentrating on an imported brooch and upper arm bracelet fashioned of straas links with jeweled flowers and foliage. Then there's the new rope bracelets that come in three colors with carved dangles of semi precious stones. And the diamond linked wrist watch with a flat, octagon shaped diamond covering the dial in place of the usual crystal. And of course she'd love to have one of the new fur coats with matching necklace and bracelet of beige dyed ermine with jeweled clasps. Incidentally, Rosalie is wearing a dress with the new neckline that harmonizes with the line made by her double strand of pearls.

AFTER EISTEDDFOD

Jackson, Ohio, Seeks 1930 National Meet; Town is Favored

Jackson, Dec 8—This little community may be host to the National Eisteddfod in 1930. The possibility looms stronger now than at any time since the fame of the Jackson Eisteddfod became nationwide and a formal bid for the 1930 Eisteddfod is being made.

The large cities which usually are awarded the singing festival have requested the meeting in 1929 and 1931, which gives the sponsors and members of the Eisteddfod here high hopes of being given the honor of being hosts in two years.

John D. Jones, Jackson, presided over the National Eisteddfod at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., this year and was known as the "man who came from Jackson, the place where they have the big Eisteddfod."

It is understood that the national executive committee favors awarding the Eisteddfod to Jackson at a near future date.

How and why was Dave Barry chosen to referee the fight? What were his instructions to the fighters? What happened during those few fast seconds when Dempsey sent Tunney to the canvas in the famous seventh round? How did Barry score the fight, round by round? Now the truth is told! No man was better able to judge what happened than Dave Barry—the third man in the ring. His own story of the fight is now told for the first time.

Getting Militaristic

Will Rogers Accuses Somebody of Feeding Coolidge Meat When He Tells Europe We Can Lay Plans of Our Own

By WILL ROGERS

Well, all I know is just what I read in the papers, and what I heard in the old Village. You know if you got nothing to talk about you can always talk about the weather. Now I don't remember in the whole ever having to talk about the weather, but by golly I got to say a good word for it. It has been the warmest and sunniest and most beautiful fall here in New York that ever I saw in your life. (This part of the article will be either censored or deleted entirely in all California papers.) Chances are I will lose my citizenship out there, and my dogs will be confiscated. But the truth must out. It has been a wonderful fall. Now Beverly Hills, that is treason burn me in effigy. Coolidge is still prowling around down in South America. We know little about it we don't know the country he is in. We know he went South one way and comes back the other. We don't know whether he went over, under or went around. Maybe he is able to stir up a lot of interest in those South American countries among people up here. I used to do it 27 years ago, but I don't seem to stir up much interest.

Peace Envoys

Another Cowboy, Dick Parris, and myself dew nin 1901 to the Argentine as Peace envoys from Claremore, Indian Territory. We was a little disappointed in our reception. We went out on the ranches and those we discovered could throw a while lasso further than either of us could throw a green apple. I came back and said I had never seen such a productive country. You just throw anything out there and it grows. Buenos Aires was a marvelous City of over a million people then. It comes nearer being an American City than any other City outside our own country. But we had no shipping and business with them. England and Germany had all their trade. Those great docks in Buenos Aires, second even then to only Liverpool, were packed with ships from every land. But not an old Stars and Stripes could you find. Course we have made some progress with them since then. But here is where our big trade should be, and this trip of Mr. Hoover's will be the greatest thing that ever was undertaken for us.

Spanish is the language. This old Gag of having the children take up French because it's fashionable is the Baloney. You don't see anybody in France but Americans, so you don't get any chance to try out your French anyway. But just look at the dozens of countries that speak Spanish in addition to Spain. It's the only one to learn for you can use it commercially the rest of your life.

Learn Spanish and you can use it commercially the rest of your life

There is a great gang of men that did a great deal for us during the war. It was called the War Industries Board, it comprised the heads of all big business and they all worked in conjunction with the Army and Navy to supply our whole forces. Well they kinder keep their organization together, and have a meeting every year. It is headed by Barney Baruch, (the sole surviving wealthy Democrat). Most of the men that belong to it are Republicans, and are from all over the country. Well there was about 200 of 'em and they was in our Opera House the other night, and we had a lot of fun. Baruch worked it pretty slick this year. He generally underwrites the Democratic foolishness's every four years, but this year he was smart. He located this fellow Raskob who had made so much money he was looking for some place to put some of it where he could show a loss on his income tax, so Barney got him interested in the Democrats, "That he dident know of a surer fire place to put it to show a loss." So Barney kinder "RELUCTANTLY" relinquished the leadership to him, and got out from under for once in his life.

Great Salesmanship

Raskob, being in the Automobile business, naturally asked when told of the Democrats asked, "Is it a four or a six?" Barney replied, "It's not a conveyance, it's a stationary thing, it looks like it's going but it ain't." So he sold the idea to Raskob. I think it was one of the greatest bits of salesmanship ever recorded on Wall Street. Now all Raskob has is some letters from Senator Moses and a two million dollar deficit, and Barney is just grinding around trying to pick out some other victim for 32, unless Raskob is a glutton for punishment and wants to have another crack at it.

They had General Pershing with 'em that night and he come back in my dressing room and Gee he is looking great. He certainly got an ovation in the Theater when I introduced him. He is getting bigger every year and will be about one of the only three great Generals that will live from that war, Hindenburg, Foch, and Pershing that will about let 'em out.

And say, what do you know about Calvin turning kinder militaristic on Armistice Day Somebody has been feeding him meat! He just kindly informed Europe that we were competent to lay out our own Cruiser plans without any outside interruptions.

Personal Affair

Now England and America are in a hot argument over the Navys. Congressman Britten wants to take a Delegation from Chicago and meet England, decide and then notify Congress and Kellogg and Coolidge what they have decided on.

Why dont they let every Nation go ahead and do what it wants too? Why should us and England have exactly the same size Navy any more than we should have the same things to eat every morning? Your Navy is as much a personal affair with a Country as your habits are. They dont no more than get some boat built till its out of date anyhow. Get us a good Navy, and a good Army and MORE aeroplanes than anybody, and just say, "You we got 'em, but they are only to be used on the home grounds now lay off us."

LOCAL CHURCHES ADOPT NEW PLAN

Separate Week of Prayer To Replace Union Services Formerly Held

Contrary to the custom of the past few years, and of last year, Protestant churches of Marion will not hold a week of union prayer services in January this winter.

This announcement was made today by the Rev. Herbert F. Weckmueller, president of the Marion County Ministerial association.

Instead of the union service plan, each Protestant church will observe the week of prayer, set aside by the Federal Council of Churches of America, as their respective pastors arrange.

Prayer services last year in the first week of January were held in the different Marion Protestant churches, with the various pastors taking turns in conducting the meetings.

None of the churches here have yet completed plans for their program in observance of the prayer week.

A Vision of the Christ

A SERMONETTE
BY THE REV. IRVIN KAUFFMAN
Pastor, Greenwood Evangelical Church
Text—John 12:21

At this time Jesus had reached the climax of His popularity. Even His enemies were ready to admit the magnitude of his following. The Pharisees said, "Behold, the world has gone after Him." Then came these Greeks to Philip, saying, "Sir, we would see Jesus." In the words of this request they voiced the desire of the multitude—the desire of the world, as the Pharisees had expressed it.

It were well for the world of today, if this same desire could be found in the hearts of all men. The need for a clearer vision of the Christ and for a better understanding of his teachings is most apparent. A vision of the world's Saviour has been, and is today, the world's crying need. The business world needs to see Jesus. The social world needs to see Jesus. The political world needs to see Jesus. The church world needs to see Jesus. The whole wide world needs to see Jesus.

But how may He be seen? Every one who looks to Him with the eye of faith, with a desire born of a realized need, shall truly see Him. This principle is perhaps best expressed in the words of one of the Moody and Sankey gospel songs so popular a generation ago:—

"I've a message from the Lord, Hallelujah!
The message unto you I'll give,
'Tis recorded in His word, Hallelujah!
It is only that you look and live.

'Look and live, my brother, live,
Look to Jesus now and live;
'Tis recorded, in His word, Hallelujah!
It is only that you look and live."

What are the results of such a vision? It rids of sin. It settles faith. It produces joy. It transforms character. It prepares us for the Lord's coming and for the judgment.

Produce these results in the life of each individual; and the world, which is now upside down, will then be right side up.

"Understanding" Wife Is Witness To Wedding of Husband to Young Girl

Feels "Terribly Sorry" as Officials Start Investigation of Bigamously Twisted Affair at Sayville, New York; Other Woman Described as "A Beautiful Character"

Sayville N Y Dec 8—A strange love triangle involving an 'understanding wife' her love-sick husband, Herbert J Leigh Mannell a church organist and romantic music teacher and the other girl in an queer and bigamously twisted an affair as the most imaginative fiction writer might conceive was today upsetting the public, the press, the police and the principals themselves

Ethel Leigh Mannell, the wife stood out as the most extraordinary character in the love drama, for she is playing the inexplicably strange role of a wife who, understanding her husband complacently arranged the wedding of her husband and father of her three children to 19-year old Martha Van Wyen She even witnessed the marriage

It was all so simple Her amorous husband found 'fell out' of love with her and 'fell in' love with Miss Van Wyen So Mrs Leigh Mannell thought it perfectly OK for hubby to take unto himself the younger wife Albeit, neglecting however, to rid himself of wife number one.

Bigamy Charges Loom

Thus he finds himself today in the plight of having two wives—very embarrassing indeed, what with the authorities making it hard on all concerned and threatening to send him to jail for bigamy and perhaps Miss Van Wyen, as well

Mrs Leigh Mannell feels "terribly sorry that her poor, misunderstood husband has got himself in a jam She not only did her bit in helping him marry the girl of his dreams but she supplied $5 000 bail after he had been arrested Moreover she's going to stick to him through thick and thin The neighbors say she is a woman in a million Why not make it 10 million?

At the modest home, over which the shadow of scandal has suddenly fallen the wife nursed and petted her husband this morning telling him to "buck up and not to worry" She explained all things by referring to his genius and hoped all would be for the best

Wanted Happiness

I did what I did because I wanted to make my husband happy she said I have known for two years that my husband was attracted to Martha and I once found out they were in love When I learned Herbert wanted her instead of me what else was there to do

Not only that but Mrs Leigh Mannell doesn't hold the slightest ill will toward Miss Van Wyen No indeed she never was jealous of her! Martha is such a nice girl! Not a vamp or any thing like that—in fact she and the girl have always been friends almost like sisters

A beautiful character, the wife remarked in describing the other woman

Meditations OF A Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

BARGAIN MARRIAGES

THE marriage market on Wall Street seems to be full of bulls and bears these days—those bent on buying, and those bent on selling

The only question in a modern girl's mind appears to be whether she'd rather be fascinating enough to get a rich husband, or rich enough to buy a fascinating one

Whether to stick to dermatology and beauty culture, spend her money on silk stockings, go into the chorus and find a man who is willing to be her angel, banker and cash register Or to stick to business save her pennies and some day find an attractive young man who is willing to be bought and paid for and will squander her dollars

All the rich men are marrying check room cuties, telephone sirens, beautiful shop girls chorines and bathing beauty prize winners

And all the rich women are taking singing to raise or marrying their sons' college mates and fraternity brothers

The odds are sort of even whether a girl decides to be a rich man's house pet or a poor man's checkbook

About a year seems to be as long as any of these bargain marriages ever last and two weeks is their average life Lots of them expire two days after the wedding from sheer nausea or anaemia

The girl who marries a man purely for the love of his checkbook soon finds that he is either the kind who bores her to death or the kind who bosses her to death and wants to order everything around the house from the meal hours to her hats and the brand of her tooth powder

Or else he is the kind who insists on keeping separate automobiles so that he and his wife can travel separate roads who changes his heart every time he changes to his dinner coat and to whom life's just one pair of dimpled knees after another

On the other hand these "bought and paid for" husbands are nearly always the kind that will never miss out After a few weeks of luxurious idleness they tire of the "bargain" and begin to look upon the woman's knees as an income tax They are not willing to give even a little imitation devotion in return for their board and clothes and cigarettes Their eyes may be upon the dollars—but they keep wandering to the dinner

Happy the girl who is wise enough to look upon marriage as a partnership and not as a get-rich-quick scheme and who picks a hard working boy, with whom she can work and play and struggle up the hill to success

Nobody EVER got a "bargain" in marriage—because marriage is not a BARGAIN! It's a quid pro quo proposition!

Wells in Section of City Go Dry After Railroad Starts Waterworks Plant

Residents on Four Streets in Northwest Marion Forced To Carry Water to Homes, Hocking Valley Plant and Dry Weather Blamed

Installation several months ago of a waterworks here by the Hocking Valley railroad has materially affected the supply of water in residential property wells located near the Hocking Valley auditorium where the waterworks is located it was learned today

A majority of the wells in the section bounded by the Pennsylvania railroad tracks Silver st Lee st and the corporation line have gone dry soon after the introduction by the Hocking Valley railroad it was reported

Forced to Carry Water

Four streets in this section are without city water residents depending entirely on the supply obtained from wells Since the wells have gone dry they have been forced to carry water for as much as three quarters of a mile in some cases it learned

Dr I M Mead coal dealer for the state ward who lives on Lee st and who was formerly a well driller was however of the opinion that the failure of the water supply was due to the fact that only a limited rainfall for the past several months Blamed for the failure of the water supply as such as the coupling by the Hocking Valley railroad

Unfit To Blame

Pumping these wells by the water works and probably affect the supply materially he said Three of the dry wells are 36 inches in diameter Mead said while the other two are only approximately eight inches wide

Approximately 90 per cent of the wells in the affected section have gone dry Mead said Many of these from which water can still be obtained are pumping dry from the bottom of the well he said As a result water drained from many of the wells not dry is muddy and must be allowed to settle before it can be used

Drilling of wells deeper would be much cheaper than the installation of city water Mead said There is no question that the water in there I stated If drilling is only done deep enough to reach it

The waterworks of the Hocking Valley railroad supplies water for the engines of both the Hocking Valley and Toledo roads

You, like most people, are probably willing to pay a premium for quality. But in the case of Our Coal that isn't necessary.

Why? Why are we able to sell our good coal at an ordinary price? Because of our large volume of sales, because of quantity.

She might have disposed of them just as effectually by throwing them overboard.

The Trail Blazer Passes Out.

What a man was Ezra Meeker! Now he is dead, after ninety-eight active years. The old trail blazer passed out, looking toward his glorified West for the last time.

Ezra Meeker was an Ohioan, born in Butler county, December 29, 1830. Ponder that. Note the record of his busy life. With an ox team he crossed the Oregon trail in 1852. A farmer in the state of Washington for half a century. In 1905 he returned to the Pacific coast, again by ox team, over the trail he had followed fifty-three years before. Since that time the veteran had crossed the continent by airplane. Ezra Meeker kept pace with progress.

The abundant accumulation which Ezra Meeker had stored away never turned his face away from the future. There was no rusting out. He carried on, and in the midst of physical activities found time to write three or four books, among them a pioneer tale for children. Here was a big man. Not big in a physical sense, perhaps, nor great as men who serve in high office are sometimes considered great. He was great in his own right.

No country save the United States could produce a man such as the trail blazer of '52. Nor can America again produce his like. Sturdy, fearless, indomitable, lovable—he lived his unique life to find himself greatly esteemed by all men with whom he came into contact. The death of Ezra Meeker marks the passing of the last of that great family of pioneers which made possible the opening of that great and uncharted West—which carried civilization from the restricted area of the East to the unlimited spaces of the Pacific coast, and which was largely responsible for making America the nation what it is.

Many people today will recall the ancient covered wagon and the ox team which Ezra Meeker drove across the nation, retracing the Oregon trail in 1905. Starting at New York City, Ezra Meeker drove his plodding oxen down Broadway and headed into the West—a vastly different undertaking than it was half a century before when, with his wife and baby, he faced toward the setting sun and began the long trek which ultimately landed him in Oregon. Everywhere Ezra Meeker went during that long journey retracing the Oregon trail, throngs gathered about his unique outfit, and he was welcomed by mayors and governors and civic clubs, made much of and feted and banqueted. But none of this adulation turned Ezra Meeker's head. He was a simple old man, with simple tastes, and he didn't permit the cheers of the crowd to make him dizzy.

So passes the last member of the great family which blazed its way across this continent in the days of the covered wagon. Were it possible, the folks of today would have Ezra Meeker live on forever, so that contact with those hardy pioneers might be maintained for the benefit it would be to the generations still to come.

"Unbeautiful" Church Edifices.

In addressing a gathering of ministers in New York City, one morning this week, the Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, who is known and admired the land over by reason of his radio addresses, made the statement that the Protestant denominations of the country have expended between $500,000,000 and $700,000,000 in the erection of "unbeautiful" churches, his own among them, and he severely criticized the names given to the majority of Protestant church edifices.

The doctor was represented in the report of his address as having used the word "wasted," rather than "expended," but we would rather believe that he used the latter term, for surely even an "unbeautiful" church may bring some return.

"The Protestant church of the future," Dr. Cadman predicted, "will revert from its present spending of millions of dollars on edifices which proclaim ignorance and ugliness, to the erecting of buildings whose outward loveliness and internal beauty will be an inspiration to greater devotion."

Dr. Cadman gave it as his opinion that such names as are borne by some of the churches of New York, citing the Brick Presbyterian church, the Fifth Avenue and Thirty-Seventh Street, the Marble Collegiate church and the Fifth Avenue and Twenty-Ninth Street had chilling names, entirely "unworthy of the noble men who serve them as pastors."

"And my own church," the doctor continued, "is called 'Central church.' Why, I don't know. And all over the country we have the 'West' church and the 'East' church, the 'North' church and the 'South' church. What do these names convey?"

Dr. Cadman stated that the preceding week he had helped dedicate "the beautiful new Methodist Church of Our Saviour" in Cleveland, which he held out as a fitting name for a house of worship, and he spoke of its architecture as meeting his idea of what a temple of God should be. "The house of God should be beautiful," he went on. "Our people of today are not acquainted with the great realities of faith as they were in the past, and therefore it becomes necessary to teach them through architecture, beauty of form, music and symbolism."

Is it not so? Is not all that the doctor has here said true? Are not far too many of our churches unsightly? Are not too many of them architectural monstrosities? Are not many of them dark, gloomy and foreboding without elevation or line of appeal to the eye?

If the Christian religion is anything, it is a thing of beauty. Its forms and ceremonies are beautiful. It teaches the beautiful in life and in living and it makes for the beautiful in soul. Why should teachings thus directed suffer the handicap of being expounded amid surroundings "unbeautiful," to use the doctor's term, and often absolutely unsightly? And why should the place of such teachings suffer the handicap of a name, often not only meaningless, but also absolutely foreign to and away from the teachings expressed therein.

Having given birth to a twin daughter in the morning at Hiawatha, Kansas, a woman of that place was taken to a hospital in Falls City, Nebraska, where a twin daughter was born at noon of the same day. Twins born in different states, it may be said in passing, are just a bit exceptional.

Habitual Criminal Act for Ohio.

The Ohio State Bar association will recommend to the Ohio general assembly, the coming winter, the enactment of a law providing life imprisonment for habitual criminals convicted of certain major crimes. There was thought, at one time, of a law similar to the Baumes law of New York or the habitual criminal act of the state of Michigan, but opposition to a measure along the line of these two laws proved strong among the members of the association, the objection being that it is possible under either to inflict life imprisonment for minor offenses. As a matter of fact, under either the New York or Michigan law a sentence of life imprisonment is mandatory for a minor crime if it results in a fourth conviction.

As an illustration, there is the very notable case of the man whose fourth conviction was for the possession of a pint of whisky. He is in prison today to serve time for the term of his life because of the fact that he had previously been convicted of three minor crimes—our recollection is that all of them resulted from liquor law violations—while hundreds of thousands guilty of far greater crimes are enjoying freedom and millions of greater offenders against the liquor laws—hundreds, if not thousands, of them right here in our home city—are respected as good and law-abiding citizens, despite the fact that from day to day they are guilty of offending along the same line as did this man who has been committed to prison for life.

To any fair-minded person, the law to be recommended by the Bar association must appeal as infinitely fairer and more in accord with the eternal fitness of things than either that of New York or that of Michigan.

THE STRANGE INTERLUDE.

Limited in Capacity.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Overfeeding is one of the chief causes of a baby's unhappiness. It may protest for a few moments if not permitted to take all the food it thinks it wants. But it is sure to be miserably unhappy for a long time if permitted to take this surplus of food.

The baby's stomach is limited in capacity. It just can not hold more than a very limited quantity of food. If too much milk is given, the excess is returned through the mouth.

The doctors call this manner of the rejection of food "regurgitation." That is a big word, isn't it? Regurgitation differs from real vomiting. It is merely a return of the surplus, without sign of pain or illness.

Nature is very alert to the health and welfare of the baby. The stomach is supplied with watchful nerves and strong muscles. On the first sign of overfeeding the good little stomach makes known that it can handle no more food. The regurgitation of the milk is the warning to the mother that baby has had enough.

The mother has more milk than the very young baby needs. This must not be forgotten. As the child grows older and stronger it can take more.

Vomiting is quite a different thing from simple regurgitation. In the latter the milk is returned sweet and normal. In vomiting the ejected material is sour and may be clotted.

True vomiting is accompanied by certain pronounced symptoms indicating real illness. The baby is cold and pale. It may be bathed in a clammy perspiration. Everybody can see it is a sick youngster.

Vomiting does not of necessity indicate stomach trouble. Hardly is does, but the infectious or contagious diseases are sometimes introduced by this symptom. Pneumonia and other ailments may begin this way.

In most instances, however, vomiting, especially if the discharged material has a disagreeable odor, is a sign of a disturbed stomach due to improper feeding. On this account the first thing to do in case of vomiting is to stop the food.

It seems a terrible thing to a young mother to deprive her baby of all food, but it can go very well for seven or eight hours without any food whatever. Then barley water can be given.

Always notify your doctor if the baby is seized with vomiting spells. There is something wrong in your method of feeding and you should find out what must be changed to make the feeding exactly right.

Editorial Opinion.

ELIMINATING A MIDDLEMAN.

The uniform express contract which has existed for several years between the American Railway Express company and the railroads of the country expires next February, and from present indications it will not be renewed. A committee of representative railroad executives has reached an agreement with the express company whereby the carriers will buy out the latter's plant and will handle their own express business from this point on. The cost of buying out the private company will be allocated among the railroads on the basis of their respective shares in this type of business, and the express business will be administered through a railroad-owned corporation to be known as the Railway Express Agency, Inc.

The proposed arrangement should, on the whole, work out satisfactorily from the standpoint of the carriers. The presence of the private express company—a middleman—in the railroad picture has always been something of an anomaly, and at various times it has complicated the question of Interstate Commerce commission's supervision. The railroads have never been satisfied with the financial arrangements existing between themselves and the express company, contending year in and year out that this phase of the carrier business scarcely repaid them a new dollar for an old. To their demands for more generous compensation the express company has always graciously replied: "We should be glad to pay a higher price for the service you are giving us if only the Interstate Commerce commission will do its share by increasing express rates."

As for the Interstate Commerce commission, it seems never to have known precisely how to deal with the anomaly, so it has simply challenged it and let it go at that. When the express company has come before it for higher rates, it has demurred on the ground that the latter, since it was neither shipper nor carrier, was not properly privileged to make such demands; when the carriers themselves have sought relief, the commission has been inclined to handle their pleas quite in gingerly, on the general theory that, after all, it was not the carriers, but the express company that stood to benefit by increased rates. Complication of the express handling phase of the railroad business should clarify at least one of the commission's rate-making problems and should put the carriers in a better strategic position for obtaining adequate returns from this source.—New York Herald Tribune.

HUMAN TIES DISREGARDED.

When he prepared his will and disposed of his fortune amounting to some hundreds of millions of dollars, Thomas Fortune Ryan left to his son, Allan, only a pair of pearl shirt studs. Millions were given to others, but one son was left not a single dollar. The father and son had been estranged for years.

Even a bitter enemy, if Mr. Ryan had one, would not have wanted him to write his will in that manner, or give such treatment to his own flesh and blood. There are few wills of that sort shown in the probate courts of the land. When the last will and testament is being prepared the normal feeling of kindness usually is in control, the paternal urge seldom is successfully resisted. The last will is read after the maker has departed. Few men care to have that document reflect disregard of a child, or suggest bitterness and hatred. Normal men and women prefer that no parent disregard the ties of blood.

Preparing a will is an important task, one to which most men and women give careful thought. Most wills tell a story of the sweetness of soul, the generosity of the heart, they may show the pain bitterness had caused, and the forgiveness the parental heart is supposed to contain. Any trace of hostility between parent and child is saddening. The thought of bitterness is grim and terrifying. Ugly qualities may be pushed aside as one contemplates the remembrance of writing a will, and perhaps ponders on problems of the future. Under such circumstances human vanities and vexations show in all their littleness by comparison.

Fortunately for humanity few wills carry even the faintest suggestion of bitterness. The parental heart makes the right response when that last task is under way. Any will in which there is a suggestion of hardness of heart and lack of parental tenderness offers a tremendous illustration to all others of the wrong way of doing an important task. The thought of leaving the world in peace with other men, with family love showing, is appealing and powerful to the normal heart. Mr. Ryan made a reputation as a man capable of planning and directing huge business matters. In the world of business he had a high place, his best friends will regret the fact that he made an unfortunate will. The best in the man's heart was not revealed.—Ohio State Journal.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Dec. 8—Fourteenth street has been enlivened lately with a merchandising experiment often attended by riots and a call for the gendarmes. On a prominent corner is featured at intervals a sale of two-dollar millinery and ladies' suits priced from five dollars to $10. The articles have a smart appearance.

Between sales the establishment closes and prepares for the crowds to make melee, as it were. Huge brass rails protect each show window. The street is roped off and strong-armed private huskies bulwark police lines. Before sun-up on the day of a sale the surrounding streets are thronged.

Housewives, chiefly from the lower East Side, are there for the scrimmage and enjoy it hugely. The barrier drops when the doors open and the mad rush is on—a screaming mass of elbow-jabbing, shin-kicking and hair-pulling women in a wave of hysterical bargain hunting.

They snatch articles from clerks, slap down their money and fight their way out. Ambulances are in waiting. In some instances the doors have to be locked until the police restore order and then they are opened and another mass attack sets in.

Nothing like it has even been seen in the town. In the beginning the owner held his sale in a small room in a loft building after canvassing the East Side with sales dodgers. The idea caught on, he quickly outgrew his original space and rented an entire ground floor room.

Today he occupies most of the space in a huge building which he now owns, and is said to be a millionaire. His articles are replicas of the current styles of Broadway and the avenue. The profits are necessarily small, but the turnover is tremendous.

So eager are customers for admission the loafers and jobless from Union square pick up extra change standing in line and giving up their places to prospective buyers for a twenty-five-cent fee.

* * *

Broadway has a new how-do-you-do-it in a salesroom near the Winter garden given over to the exposure of motion picture trickery and featuring a screaming slogan: "See How the Camera Lies!" For a fifty-cent admission, movie fans are shown sets and paraphernalia revealing how their heroes and heroines create the illusion of jumping over giant cliffs, leaping from airplanes to express trains, scaling skyscrapers and other hokum, including a terrifying deep-sea picture taken in six feet of water. And those who have sat ga-ga and breathless through hair-raising moments in the cinema, leave all the kanoodling feeling about twelve brain cells removed from half-wits.

In a movie studio once I saw a favorite hiss-provoking villain on his hands and knees crawling slowly along in what seemed to me farcial agony. He was on a strip of scenery flat on the floor and was making his way toward a cameraman merrily turning a crank. A few days later I saw the film and this bit showed him mounting the dizzy facade of a skyscraper in the manner of a "human fly." My love for movie heroism immediately flew out the window. It upset me terribly and is one of the reasons I cry when crossing cops speak harshly.

New York's area—any one who checks me up on this would step on a bed of innocent violets—is larger than the combined areas of Baltimore, Boston, Cincinnati, Denver, Detroit, Minneapolis and St. Louis, and is the center of an urban population of 9,000,000. And with all this area and population I am wondering why a gentleman with a beard singled me out this afternoon to turn cute and inquire tartly why I carried a walking stick.

"They are only for fops!" he snorted.

I know a lot one about a beard if I didn't happen to be such a little gentleman.

Sometimes I think there is virtue in cocktails—to the other fellow. The other afternoon I was jockeyed into a corner at one of those stiff—fitting word—tens by a monocled "r"-dropping dandy with all the Picadilly drawls and inflections. After three cocktails he went completely Missouri, and I found he used to slop pigs in the adjoining county to mine. I was afraid to go on for fear he might turn out to be a relative.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Moon Puzzle.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

"Although I was taught many things about the moon, sun, stars, seasons, signs and the beauties of nature by my father, who lived his complete life in the country near the city, I never asked him the following question, but during the past few years I have asked some intelligent friends who were unable to answer, or else turned it to humor, saying it was the sun between us and the moon, or that the moon simply grew from new to full, which, of course, was ridiculous, though I believed that when a small child. So, still not knowing, I come to you to ask: What causes the moon to increase and decrease in size, or what comes between us and the moon, hiding a portion of it?—Mrs. W. H., Paterson, New Jersey."

"Ah, would some god the giftie gi' us,
To make imagination hi' us."

If you would only see the moon as being round, instead of flat—a ball instead of a dish—the mystery would instantly clear away. Call freely on the imagination to help you make the moon appear, as it is, in the form of a solid globe, the same in every position in which it is represented.

At new moon the sun shines only on that half of the lunar globe which is turned away from the earth. Consequently the moon, having no light of her own, and being, moreover, at the time "in the eye of the sun," is invisible from the earth. She then swings away to the "crescent" position. Now the center of her disk, as seen from the earth, is yet in darkness, but a part of her illuminated hemisphere comes into view on the right. Don't stop thinking of her as a globe and not a flat circle.

Follow her next to the "half moon" position. Now the center of the moon's disk as seen from the earth lies exactly on the line between daylight and darkness on the moon, and her enlightened hemisphere being seen edgewise, gives her the apparent shape of a half-disk.

Go on to the "Gibbous" position. The center of the earth-facing disk is now within the illuminated hemisphere of the moon, but not yet in the middle of it. The moon's illuminated face is turned only partly toward the earth, and she appears oblong in outline.

Finally, when she reaches the position of "full," she appears exactly opposite to the sun in the sky, and what we see is the whole of her illuminated half, the center of her earth-facing disk being now in the middle of the illuminated part.

In following the moon around thus, you must use your imagination to make her appear in the form of a globe.

Remember that science as well as poetry needs the imagination; poetry gives it more freedom, but science uses the reins carefully—or is supposed to do so. There are always some reckless riders for a spirited steed.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Not so many years ago a young man rowed across the Rhine river near the city of Lyons, France. His brother stood on the bank and took his picture with the first camera of its kind that had ever been made. When the picture was shown later in a dark cellar the friends of these two young men were astonished. They had seen the first motion picture film.

Louis Lumiere, father of the movies, still tinkers in his laboratory in Paris. He made little out of the movies. He doesn't know one star performer from another. He rarely goes to the pictures. He has made money from other inventions. But how he must marvel when he observes the astounding industry that grew out of his head!

* * *

Writing about a particular growth, one is moved to make observations about all growth. Growth may be a very terrible thing as well as a rich and desirable thing. Cancer is a wild and uncontrolled growth of cells in the body. Cancer, growing, destroys the body. Both mind and body can be destroyed by growth—the continuance and enlargement of a bad habit for example. Uncontrolled growth is dangerous, as fire is dangerous.

* * *

This column seems destined today to contain much about cameras. The American Optical society, meeting in Washington, is shown a "solid" photograph. The picture is made to appear solid to the eyes. It shows different sides of the object, depending on which way one looks at the picture. Fortunately for most of us we can't be seen that way. If we could be seen as a "solid" we might show up empty. If we could be looked at through and through and on all sides, what about the blemishes — mental, physical, moral?

The magazine, Pictorial Review, which gives every year $5,000 to American woman who, in the judgment of a highly competent jury, has made the most distinctive contribution of the year to the world of letters, arts, science or the social sciences. This year it is awarded to Miss Martha Berry. This woman has built up remarkable schools in Georgia for the poor but ambitious boys and girls of the southern mountains. Her schools now house 1,000 pupils and have a waiting list of 3,000. She has to find $200,000 to run on her work of teaching and training for life and for success.

Dinner Stories.

"Am I the first girl you ever kissed?"

"Eventually."

"What do you mean, eventually."

"You are the last, and you know 'the last shall be first.'"

* * *

"When all is said and done," she began.

"I never expect to see that day," her husband interrupted.

"What day?"

"When you're said everything."

* * *

She—"I don't see why you should complain. Haven't I been fair to you?"

He—Yes, but I want you to be fair and warmer."

* * *

"Do you favor a quiet inauguration?"

"No," answered Senator Sorghum. "People should not be encouraged to become too serious. Occasionally we should recognize the idea that the more noise we make the less we think."

MARYSVILLE LOSES TO DELAWARE TEAM

Debate One of Many Held Throughout State in League Contest

DISCUSS AFFIRMATIVE

Will Debate Same Question at Delaware in January

Marysville, Dec. 8—Clashing warmly on 10 different issues, all of tremendous importance, the Marysville-Delaware debate, in which Marysville upheld the affirmative, held in the Marysville high school auditorium Thursday night, was one of the finest debates given here in many years.

This question, "Resolved, That the U. S should cease to use armed force to protect capital invested in foreign countries, except after a formal declaration of war," was the subject for debates between 86 other high schools of Ohio on the same Friday nights.

Miss Doris Brooks questioned the necessity of the use of armed force. Miss Lois Callway pointed out many examples where it has been unsuccessful, and Miss Virginia Lentz advocated the use of economical boycott in its stead, showing a knowledge of the question equal to that of the Delaware team. This team, whose personnel consisted of Elmer and Alberta McFadden and Cecil Jones, provided proof of times where armed force has been satisfactory, upheld the Monroe doctrine, pointed out evils that would be brought out by a change and many other arguments, which, according to Dr. John T. Marshman, head of the department of oratory and head coach of debate of Ohio Wesleyan, who judged the debate, were better chosen than those of the Marysville speakers.

Cecil Jones, third negative speaker, was the outstanding debater of the evening, and was well supported by his colleagues, who showed marvelous ability to provide almost instantaneous arguments, most convincingly. The result due a great deal to the inexperience of the Marysville girls, was a three to two decision in favor of Delaware.

Early next month, at Delaware, the teams will debate the same question from the opposite viewpoints.

ARTS CLUB HAS INTERESTING PROGRAM

The Three Arts club, with Mrs. Carl Setterfield, (upper left), as president, Mrs. F. B. Shannon, (center), vice president, Mrs. L. H. Ford, (upper right), secretary, and Mrs. Rex Robinson, (lower left), treasurer, has held five meetings since the opening of the club's 1928-29 season Oct. 9.

An interesting program built around a trip through modern Europe is being studied by the club this year. The club has added a study of correct English to the calendar this year and at each meeting a drill is conducted by one of the club members.

As a motto for guidance during the club season the members chose the following: "May we be never hasty in judgment and always generous."

Just Things

BY EDNA S DUTTON

RADIO BUSINESS

WITH the glad Christmas tide right in our midst and the scurry to find time to do our bit in relieving the store counters of their burden, it's small wonder that best friends are passed up without even so much as the flutter of an eyelash and we rub elbows with our next door neighbor without even being conscious of the fact. The wares are wonderful and it's a hard matter to decide in just what department one is going to spend his nickel. There's a lot of things over which one might let their soup grow cold as they ponder, but the most puzzling thing to me is this radio buying business. One's heart misses a few beats as they see a masterpiece, just the very thing they wanted, priced in a range to which they might aspire financially, and upon recovery beats it up the alley to invoice their purse. Returning, one scrutinizes the announcement more closely to make sure they are not in need of new glasses, and sure enough there's the "ketch." The price is without the tubes. Now, I ask, what dispenser of wares, whether he be a big five and ten cent man or the diamond importer, would sell you the butter knife without the sugar spoon the salt shaker without its trusty companion, the gravy boat without the ladle, the cup without the saucer, or what have you? Running true to my sex, wouldn't it be a better proposition to present the whole in a lump sum and then, if one had any old tubes or connections parked in the attic that's your good luck. To be sure this might not make such whoopee with the salesman but if he is any judge of humanity, particularly of the alleged weaker species, he should know that it will only be a matter of time until he will corner the sale of the tubes.

CHAMPION HENS

IF you are owner and manager of a large poultry industry broadcast this in the hennery: A blue ribbon hen will lay a few over 300 eggs a year, one not so blue blooded only about 100. In a great national contest where ordinary hens were subjected to scientific care they produced 180 eggs a year. The ultra violet ray has done much to raise the number, experts say, which before the propagation of this phony "summer time" hovered around 120 and 130.

KEEPING FLOWERS

At this season of the year when flowers for bouquets are not so plentiful, everyone is interested in prolonging the lives of those they are fortunate enough to own. The following suggestion, which sounds positively suicidal to me was dished out as the real dope for adding a span or two to lives of the posies. When flowers are taken out of the florist's box cut off about half an inch at the end of the stems and immerse the stems in warm water till the flowers are in up to their necks, then they are ready for the vases. Chrysanthemums bear it quite hot while soft-stemmed flowers like the Calla can endure 80 or 90 degrees Fahrenheit as the limit.

What's the glad tidings? Money ... from home?

She read it through again rapidly ... the pages ignoring him

Enclosed find check he persisted ... No no check' she said nearly ... And not likely to get any more either ... Didn't I tell you the old fool was ... plant down to bed rock? Mamma ... killed the goose that laid the golden ... egg that's what she's done Ralph ... McKevitt says he's been borrowing ... on the orchard He won't have ... to keep up the interest let alone pay ... it off Next thing they'll lose the ... whole thing He's got one foot in the ... grave but you bet mama hasn't ... She'll live to be 90 Grandma Caulfield ... that she falls about in the letter ... says she is I am it 97 when she ran ... a tax in her fat and died of lock ... jaw because she would be afraid to ... open her mouth to see it coming The first ... thing that goes wrong there on the ... ranch mama will be coming to live ... with us or wanting to'

He started Spoken like a true ... daughter Now do you think she'll ... ever take me dear? She seems ... to feel against me calling ... Don't be absurd I'm serious ... There'll be some kind of trouble with ... my stepsister too If mama writes ... that she's worried'

Going to call on the girls' ... I suppose so What else can I ... do

Is she so terrible'

Heavens no Just dumb and likely ... to be a nuisance I don't want her ... running in here, being chummy I'll ... tell you that

Obey your style dearest'

Sarcastic devil Mickey used to ... call her I suppose he still does ... No but I care she added, when she ... saw his sardonic grin on Avery's dark ... face

He took the silence After a long ... pause I've got until tomorrow ... to pay my rent'

You'll have to hurry and sell ... some more work

I don't know how that there is any ... I care to sell' he retorted ... bitterly

I certainly will have to get to work' ... I refuse to prostitute my art

I don't know how you stand before ... a critic me she cried angrily 'I ... don't want to talk it to but I'm not ... sure of having you ask me for ... Avery Woodward' I should ... say you'd be rash not—I would ... risk

He got up and hunted around for ... his hat which he found under a chair ... in the room He adjusted it with ... care I'm sorry that you put it ... that way I had considered my fortune ... and my time of some value ... Much as I would enjoy going all my ... time to you I cannot since I have ... a patron saint and I can not entertain ... both I shall pay you back for all ... you have advanced me since ... you do not consider it earned I shall ... pay it back with interest

You don't even know how much ... it was she stared

I don't haggle over pennies I ... shall have to in the future I've ... decided to take on a commission that ... I have pushed aside simply because I ... did not have the time to devote to it ... It is a portrait A portrait of a lady I ... shall stay at her home in San Mateo ... to get the atmosphere So goodbye ... Crystal Thank you for the pleasant ... hours the unpleasant ones I shall try ... to forget—

"Oh come back and shut the door' ... she cried dashing away the unkind ... tears I wish you'd quit acting You ... know I won't let you go I wouldn't ... let you paint that woman's portrait ... For all the money in the world And ... Avery you can't leave me now after ... I've left art school for you You ... couldn't really and truly leave me ... could you Avery? Avery, you unprincipled scamp—tell me you couldn't

Never never' he murmured his ... lips on her cheek 'There isn't another ... woman like you in all the world'

No I'm the biggest fool of them ... all she answered loving him back ... I can't get along without you and I ... almost hate you I wish I never set ... eyes on you sometimes I'd be married ... to Ralph Mckevitt and living on ... easy street this minute If—

Humph I've not such pickings ... Cockleburr you know the little fat ... guy that looks like a garden frog and ... bought my Twilight on the Thames ... was gossiping about him the other ... day Says he's firm as liable to blow up ... any time '

'No'

'Oh yes Cockleburr's no fool He ... knows his greenbacks It ought to ... worth a cool million and a half himself '

Crystal grasped his thin arm with ... fingers that tore through the cloth ... My God do you mean that about ... Ralph' Why he's been financing me ... —he—he—'

He grinned as she broke off in confusion I know Say you're kind of unlucky, you and your Ma Luther ... due to lose his pile and now the sugar papa I'll begin to think you're a jinx!'

'Let's drown our sorrows she ... said and led him over to the music ... cabinet, where bottles, not music, were kept

Over the Chianti she said her arm ... around his neck It's the way that ... Cockleburr is a funny little fellow ... Ugly, of course but interested in art ... I'd like to meet him some time Avery ... You could bring him here—'

You devil' He kissed her white ... throat, and the tips of her little pink ears "You damn gold-digger' All ... right, my cherie, I'll bring him. Now ... drink—to us to—'

But Crystal was on her feet, her ... finger to her lips, "Shh—quiet' The ... door bell! It's Ralph . . ."

He picked up his hat, grinning. ... "Au revoir, sweet!'

She grabbed at his coat. "You can't ... go, stupid' He'll see you. Here—I'll ... hide in the kitchen. No, not the ... kitchen—my dressing room! Hurry!"

She shut the inner door on him ... just as Ralph, impatient at the delay, ... rang again and entered.

Madge Aims Lillian with the Word Guaranteed to Squelch Owen

AT Lillian's request to tell her what I had discovered about Charles Owen I seriously related everything Prince Georges had told me about Samuel Brinkman's half brother I think listened attentively, making no comment, asking no questions until I had finished Indeed her silence lasted for a long minute afterwards Then musingly she repeated the salesman Prince Georges had given me

Kenilworth Kenellos' she said Do you suppose that's the name he was known by in Reno? Did Georges give you any clue to that?

No I answered, unless that word is, truly his name, as I am inclined to think it is You see, we had so little time he was telling me these things while Lillian was reminding the ministries of the other girls to stay a little longer, and he was keeping an eye upon Mr Owen all the time he was talking I don't think he perhaps kept anything back concerning Owen In fact he told me that he would tell me more about it at the first opportunity But he thought I might need some effective weapon against the man

It is best to say nothing serious having yet has head for Georges to know that the utterance of a single word will disarm him said Lillian But I don't believe you'll have to use it How could Charles Owen harm me—I know it's on account of me you distrust the man—except to put pressure on me to get me to go back to Reno with him?

I know your right I answered But I feel as if I've been with that name locked away in my mental filing system

Of course I was ashamed It hurt me to my very core to lie to Madge now, of all times I'm going back to my room and get into some civilized clothing Don't let Marley know I was down so early nor that I know she went to the beach with Ronald

You're still supposed to be sleeping the sleep of the just or the righteous or whatever nurse the situation calls for I told her so you don't need to hurry your dressing The rest of the family won't be down for another hour

Sam Brixton will she said with conviction You saw what time he went to bed last night He always is the early bird as his favorite motto and tried his best to discourage women from following his example I shall be ready for him however this time to join you at any minute But can't you dare to leave me alone with him?

She had risen from the couch and was almost at the door as she gave us the warning

I won't I promised confiding to tell her that Katherine and I already had settled that point between us "Then she was gone, and I busied myself with restoring the things in the living room to their usual orderly arrangement after the impromptu one of the night before and replacing the flowers with fresh blossoms

The living room finished, I went out on the veranda finding little to do for the flowers were still perfect Then as always when I have a moment I stood looking toward the distant ocean with the dipping woodland and meadowlands between and the Indian summer sunlight from down the road, hidden by the blue hedge came the purr of a motor and then Ronald swung the car into the farmyard I wondered how he had missed the gate post for his exit certainly were not

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M LEWIS

A SCHOOL BOY would always be glad for Saturday to come if he didn't have an aunt that washed him for Sunday school every Sunday morning. French got his father's gun after breakfast and we all went to the woods by the side of the pasture to see if we could find any rabbit tracks and we found a lot of them and followed them until our legs almost dropped off but didn't see a rabbit. When we first started we all wanted to carry the gun but on the way back nobody wanted to carry it.

We came back down the new road past the filling station that has been built out of the haunted house and we stopped there for a drink and when we went in it was nice and warm, so we stayed there quite a while. Quite a lot of autos came along and the man in charge sold them a lot of gasoline and then when he didn't have anything to do I asked him if he knowed the station was built out of a haunted house. He just grinned and pulled down the lower lid of one of his eyes and asked me if I saw anything green in it, and I told him I didn't. So then we began to tell him all about the ghosts in the old house and all we knowed about it and he asked us questions and the Last Big of Irish started to make up things that was a dribbler than any of the other things. The man said he was glad he wasn't on night duty, but he said he would tell the night man about the ghosts and I certainly would make him hurry to catch. Then just when we were going a man came up in a red auto and honked and called the man Charlie, and told him that Bill had been called away to go to a funeral in Chicago where they have lots of funerals and he would have to stay on at nights till Bill got back and then he drove off and Charlie was standing there with his face open and his eyes sticking out. He asked French for the use of the gun till Bill got back and he gave French a dollar and a receipt for it, and we hiked out to spend the dollar.

French said his father wouldn't miss the gun and if he did he would tell him the truth about it and it would be all right. He said he had just as soon spend the dollar because since his mother died he hasn't got anyone to buy Christmas presents for. We were awful sorry about his mother being dead but awful glad he could spend the dollar. Then we went to our barn and got our skates and were going to go out and scare the filling station man, only we remembered he had the gun.

I played checkers with my grandfather and let him skunk me, and he gave me two-bits more. I earned it.

31 PERSONS INDICTED BY CLEVELAND JURY

Arrests Due To Be Made Today Following Partial Report

Cleveland, Dec. 8—Arrests were to be made today following a partial report late yesterday by the special grand jury which has been investigating alleged irregularities in past elections here. Thirty-one secret indictments were contained in the partial report.

For weeks the special grand jury has been probing evidence of frauds in former elections in Cleveland, particularly the August primary. The inquiry was directed by Attorney General Edward C. Turner.

The partial report returned last night was submitted to Common Pleas Judge Walter McMahon and contains a sweeping criticism of the whole county elections system. Much evidence has been acquired of ballot box stuffing, "voting" of dead men and other irregularities, according to Turner.

The old board of elections was ousted here a week before the November election and a new one installed. The removal order was issued by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, on evidence presented by Turner and the grand jury. It is understood, however, that none of the secret indictments returned yesterday were against the former election board members, but against various precinct officials. Trials for all of the accused are to be held as soon as possible after their arrest. Gilbert Bettman, newly-elected attorney general, has promised to call a new special grand jury to complete the investigation.

Stromberg-Carlson at Christmastide

In selecting the Radio which YOU will present, make sure it has in fullest measure the attribute more important than all the rest—TONE.

Just as a world-famous Stradivarius or Cremona violin produces an exquisiteness of tone no others can reproduce, so a Stromberg-Carlson has a tone not found in any other make of radio.

This glorious tone quality, the result of scientific design, generous use of material, care in structure, makes the Stromberg-Carlson pre-eminently the radio which expresses the spirit of Christmas.

POSTOFFICE URGES RETURN ADDRESSES

Extra Precautions Recommended To Prevent Loss of Christmas Mail

The local postoffice has sent out an appeal to the mailing public of the city, asking that it disregard custom and write return addresses on all Christmas mail, including greeting cards.

The United States Postal service has estimated that the cost to the mailing public of Christmas greetings which are never received reaches a total of $325,000 in postage, stationery and cards.

In addition to this amount, thousands of these misdirected messages contain enclosures of money gifts which, because of insufficient information to enable either delivery or return to the sender, eventually accrue in the United States treasury. Added to the cash cost is the intangible loss, not to be expressed in dollars and cents, represented by the disappointment of those who fail to receive anticipated greetings Postmaster General New has asked the question, "What is the value of a lifelong friendship compared to the bother of affixing a return address?"

At the beginning of each new year, three and four millions of these lost and strayed letters and greetings are taken to the dead letter service, in addition to the normal receipt of undeliverable letters. All of this could be eliminated if mailers could be persuaded to place return addresses in the customary corner, and the local postoffice is urging all residents of this city to assure the safety of their Christmas mail, by adding a return address.

ANCIENT COAL MINE FOUND BY CONTRACTORS

St. Clairsville, Dec. 8—The state of Ohio is richer by one coal mine than it was a few days ago. But whether there is any coal in the mine has not been determined.

Contractors rebuilding the High Ridge rd., near here, discovered the entrance to an ancient coal mine. The mine opening indicates that it is under the bed of the new road and therefore might be considered state property.

Work of constructing the road was held up while drains were built to carry off the water filling the mine shaft.

NEW WHIPPETS TO BE SHOWN TONIGHT

Latest Fours and Sixes Co on Display at McDaniel Motor Rooms

The sales force of the McDaniel Motor Co. was preparing today to show visitors the new Whippet fours and sixes. The new models are to be placed on display at the salesrooms on West Center st. tonight.

Both the four and six-cylinder models are completely redesigned and will sell at a lower price than the present models. The new four-cylinder cars are being turned out in coach, touring, coupe and roadster models. The sixes are being built in the sedan, coaches, coupes and roadsters.

The new models are being designed by the makers as the Superior Whippet. One of the outstanding features of the change in the cars is the raising of the hood and radiator. The body lines are also different.

What is designated as finger-tip control is one of the improvements made on the new Whippets. By means of a single button the driver of the new Whippet is able to start the motor, adjust the lights and sound the horn.

QUEEN ESTHER GROUP SENDS HOLIDAY BOX

Following this a taffy pull was enjoyed. Those present were Misses Martha Fredericks, Lucia Ruckman, Lena Dale Mulvaine, Vera Lavisi, Marie Jones, Mildred McCreary, Mary Culp, Hyacinth Tilton, Ruth Dickinson and LeVerne Weist.

NEW EDITION OF BIBLE JUST OUT IN PARIS

Paris—In spite of the fact that earlier editions of the Bible will probably never be entirely exhausted, new ones are being published every now and then.

An original edition of the New Testament has just come out in Paris and is called a "Bible for the Layman." The cover bears the quotation from Victor Hugo: "Pythagoras, Epicurus, Socrates and Plato are torches; Christ is the daylight."

The wisdom of the greatest of all books is presented in a popular manner to make it attractive to all classes. It is in plain type, with no notes or scholarly introductions but closely follows the original Greek.

The editors suggest that English-speaking people read it as an aid to learning French.

S-P-O-R-T S-T-A-T-I-C

by The Loudspeaker

New Gridiron

THE Marion county fairgrounds, the scene of many a great football battle, will resound to the cheers of fans no more. At least that is the writer's opinion of the matter, and the drift of a few rumors that have been innocently floating around for several weeks.

Next season games will be played in the southern section of Marion where the local board of education is planning on purchasing a site for a new senior high school. This land has not yet been bought, according to information, but the funds were made available by a vote of Marion citizens at the November elections.

This piece of land consists of a little over 17 acres and will be big enough for a large high school and an athletic plant of sufficient proportions to take care of Harding's grid activities for years to come.

* * *

Work for Change

JUST what plans the board of education has for the matter, the members are keeping mum about them. On good authority it was learned that a move is on foot to level off whatever location the high school purchases and transfer the temporary bleachers from the fairgrounds to the new location.

This move will be the first step to place athletics of the local schools on a higher plane. The old field is inadequate to handle football games. Lacking a field house, players were forced to travel a good many blocks before reaching a place where showers could be taken. After playing on a wet field during a cold afternoon nothing could be more uncomfortable than this ride.

* * *

Poorest Equipment

MARION has one of the poorest football fields in the North Central Ohio league. Ashland and Shelby have just constructed new fields, while Mansfield and Bucyrus have fairly decent gridirons.

The fact that Harding won the N. C. O. pennant this year, the first football title in the history of the school, is expected to be an added impetus to the new football field move.

Some day the Red and Black may have above a new stadium that will be on a par or better than the fields now boasted by other schools of the N. C. O. league.

FIRST PRIZE NEAR

New York, Dec. 8—First prize in the six-day bike race at Madison Square Garden apparently will be won either by the Italian-American team of Franco Georgetti and Freddy Spencer or by the French-men, Letournerand Brocardo.

THE annual battle for the basketball championships of Marion county schools got under way last night with teams representing eight high schools seeing action, both boys' and girls' aggregations played.

Only three schools of the county were not represented in the opening league games. The Caledonia-Waldo contest was postponed owing to several cases of scarlet fever being prevalent at Caledonia. The LaRue cagers will not open until next week.

In the west section of the league, Green Camp and Morral are holding down the lead of the boys' loop. Porter led the Green Camp cagers to victory over Prospect 18 to 9. He scored 14 points. Morral had little trouble in defeating Agosta, 23 to 17.

The flag in the boy's division of the east section for at least a week rests between Martel and Pleasant. The former quintet showed surprising strength in swamping Claridon, 54 to 16. The victors held a 28 to 6 lead at the half. Another one-sided score was chalked up when Pleasant walked roughshod over Kirkpatrick, 35 to 13.

The girls' contests, with one exception, proved to be close. The exception was the 68 to 3 trimming handed Agosta by the Morral sextet. Kirkpatrick had a real battle on its hands in beating Pleasant, 9 to 5, while the Prospect-Green Camp affair was quite interesting with Prospect holding the long end of the 20 to 16 score. At Claridon the home town girls were victors over Martel, 26 to 21.

Six Big Ten Teams Swing Into Action

Chicago, Dec. 8—Six of the ten teams in the Western conference are scheduled to open the basketball season in their respective ballwicks tonight. Each Big Ten quintet will oppose a small non-conference foe for the curtain raiser. The western conference championship race does not start for several weeks.

All six of tonight's openers are scheduled for Big Ten courts, as follows: Wabash at Northwestern, Monmouth at Chicago, Ohio Wesleyan at Ohio State, Washington at Indiana, North Dakota at Minnesota and South Dakota at Iowa.

Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin and Purdue will go into action for the first time next week.

KENTON REDS WILL PLAY EAGLES HERE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Manager Compton Looks for Fast Battle; Have Strong Lineup

REMEMBERING the upset that occurred last season when the Kenton Reds defeated the Ironly Dairy five after a hard battle, Manager Compton of the Marion Eagles is looking forward to a real contest in Star auditorium next Wednesday night when that team plays his aggregation.

The game will be the second of the season for the Eagles. Opening against the Bliss Collegians of Columbus, the locals stepped out to win 23 to 17.

Next week the Kenton club will be back in Marion attempting to show fans that last year's victory was no accident. Practically the same quintet that played against Ivalyn is being brought here by Manager Bert McFarland.

RICHARDS SCORES 19 POINTS TO GIVE GRADS 38-17 WIN

Junior Cagers Held Scoreless in First Quarter of Contest

CENTRAL JUNIOR cagers last night started the cage season off on the wrong foot taking a long count in their annual battle with the school's Alumni. When the smoke of the fracas cleared away from the "Y" floor the grads had won, 38 to 17.

Central had one big period. That was in the second when it scored 10 of its 17 points. The first quarter found the losers being held scoreless and only two marks were put up in the third frame. Central scored five points in the last stanza.

Richards led the Alumni to victory scoring enough points to defeat the west enders. He went through the Central defense like lightning to score 19 points. Pickerel was high man for the losers with nine points. Morgan scored the remaining eight points for Central.

Next Friday night the Centralites will take on the Marysville reserves at the Union county metropolis.

COACH JACK WILCE HEARD BY COUNTRY

"Swan Song" Sung by Doctor; Extends Best Wishes for Next Man

Columbus, Dec. 8—"We have said to the teams—train, prepare, work hard, play as a team, fight through the last second, no matter how the game may go fight cleanly, like real sportsmen. Play to win, but if you can't win without breaking the rules, lose like a gentleman."

Throughout the nation, Ohio State university alumni who heard last night, through a countrywide radio hookup, the "swan song" of Dr. John W. Wilce today proclaimed the address of the famed gridiron mentor in which he acknowledged "gratefully" the cooperation he said had been given him on all sides, and declared "I have only the best wishes for the new coach."

Wilce's speech was one of two principal addresses, featuring the national annual observance of "Ohio State Day." The other was made by Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of the university, who spoke in the absence of President G. W. Rightmire who is ill.

Pointing out that all types of institutions, teams and coaches have been beaten Dr. Wilce declared he had reached the conclusion that "It's a great sport with no one perfect—no, not one."

Touching on the 1928 squad, his last he commented: "This year's team with a new ideal All-American in Fesler is a final illustration of a group of splendid college boys playing some great football."

"The alumni of Ohio State university," Dr. Thompson said, "have taken a creditable and honorable place in the citizenship of the country and in professional life * * * Ohio States has always been rather modest in the proclamation of its ideals, but now * * * other people are continually affirming that Ohio States has taken its proper place among the notable educational institutions of the country."

SAINTS GO HOT TO WIN, 31-20

Ballenger and Kelley Star as St. Mary's Cagers Turn to Basketball After Two-Year Absence; Coach Irvin Has Foundation for Successful Aggregation

BY KARL R. M'ELROY
Sports Editor, The Star

OPENING their season with a bang, the fightin' Irish of St. Mary's high school last night opened the 1928 basketball season in Star auditorium swamping Sacred Heart of Columbus under a deluge of baskets. The contest ended with the locals holding the heavy end of a 31 to 20 score.

After a two-year layoff from the court game, the Saints are back again this season with a team that presents wonderful possibilities. The players are plenty fast and are good shots and a few more games should find them more proficient in blocking and breaking. In Ballenger and Kelley, Coach Irvin of the Irish has a fine pair of forwards with plenty of natural ability.

These two men were the outstanding cogs in the local victory. Ballenger scored four field goals and a foul for nine points while Kelley counted five fouls and two buckets for the same total. Tobin was keen on baskets, collecting three.

Griffin Heads Visitors

The Columbus team centered its play around Griffin. He was the only man to stand out, gathering in five goals for a 10 point total. The Heart were handicapped in size but made up for it in fight.

Marion completely outplayed its opponents in the first two periods of the game scoring 18 points to four for the visitors. In the last two frames the Sacred Heart cagers found the loops and managed to obtain a slight edge over St. Mary's. Their scoring in this period totaled 16 points while the locals were forced to be content with three points less.

In the opening quarter Marion counted eight points before the Columbus five managed to slip through for its first counters. Kelly drew first blood of the game with a pair of foul goals. Gorsuch followed with a field goal. Then Kelly and Tobin each scored from the field. Griffin made a start with a basket with seven minutes of the period gone. Ballenger got his first counter and as the period ended M. Durkin scored a foul.

Hit Hard in Second

The Saints continued their drive in the second quarter with Gorsuch and Gunder counting baskets shortly after the period opened. A foul gave Winters a chance to score. Kelley and Gunder were successful on a free throw each and the latter scored a bucket to end the period. It was during this period that the locals showed their best defensive form holding Columbus to a foul goal.

Overcoming stage fright, or whatever was wrong the first half the Columbus team came back strong as the last half opened. Kelley led off with a basket which was duplicated by Griffin. Ballenger added a foul and a field goal to the total. Griffin and L. Durkin gave Columbus a edge with two points each. The period ended after Tobin and Griffin made up fielders.

The contest slowed up somewhat in the final period with M. Durkin starting things off with a foul. Tobin then scored a bucket and Kelley counted two points on a pair of free throws. Ballenger dunked a locals' final basket and the period ended with M. Durkin scoring and Griffin two field goals.

COMPANY FREED

Acquitted of Charge of Selling Product for Wine-Making

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 8—The Virginia Dare Vineyards, Inc., of Pennyan, N. Y., charged with the sale, possession for sale and advertising for sale of a product intended for use in manufacturing intoxicating liquor, were acquitted today.

After deliberating the case for five hours last night a federal court jury here returned a verdict of not guilty.

The government showed that the defendant sold a grape concentrate with directions for making wine. Government chemists showed that the concentrate, when the accompanying directions were followed, developed into wine which tested 13.4 per cent alcohol.

The defense did not deny the government's contention that they sold grape concentrate with directions for making wine, but contended that section 29 of Volstead act specifically permits manufacturing wine in the home and therefore the sale of a compound devised for the legal manufacture of wine in the home was not a violation of the law.

High School Junior Class Plays Cleverly Presented; Crowd Fills Auditorium

Three One-Act Productions Add to Miss Lucile Foreman's List of Successes as Harding High Dramatic Coach; Costumes and Scenic Settings Attractive

Three clever one-act plays were presented last night, by members of the Junior class of Harding High school at Central Junior High building before an audience filling the auditorium. Miss Lucile Foreman, dramatic coach at Harding High, again won the approval of the audience with the finished quality of the three plays, the second time that she has directed one-act dramas for the junior class.

The first, "Lima Beans," was a Shorzo-play by Alfred Kreymborg, produced by special arrangement with Longmans Green & Co., of New York City, and the colors were so sharply brought out that the stage at all times presented the appearance of an animated picture card. The costuming and settings were planned by Miss Foreman, with the co-operation of Robert Smith, painter of the conventional designs, and the Lennon Furniture Co.

Ends Happily

Miss Donna Riley was cast as the wife, Catharine Cheney as the husband and Lee Kleinmaier, the huckster. The story was light, the act being based on a husband's love of lima beans when his wife thought he might like a change of diet. As all good comedies and, the finale found the domicile reconciled and lima beans for the evening meal.

"Just Women," the second play, written by Colin Campbell Clements, was laid in the living-room of the Warren home in the early Victorian period. Three town gossipers, Mrs. Pickering, Mrs. Lawty and Mrs. Romney, the minister's wife, the town society belle and the woman born in London and disgusted with the inactiveness of high society in the small English shire, gather to see Betty Warren, who had been to school in London for two years. Betty comes home, was duly inspected by the ladies and found lacking in their estimation, all of them feeling so sorry that they can't arrange to enjoy her company more frequently, but they are busy socially and with church functions.

Changed Attitude

The tone of the three women changes entirely, though, when Lady Bloshire, calls to see Betty and to congratulate her upon her approaching marriage to her son, Lord Bloshire. The women then become profuse in their invitations, but Betty has the sweet satisfaction of turning them all down because she is busy with her wedding preparations.

Miss Virginia Ballentine took the role of the deaf mother, Mrs. Warren, who is unaware most of the time of what goes on around her. Miss Mary Williams played the part of Betty. Miss Emily Dale Wingett appeared in the role of Mrs. Pickering, Miss Eula McNamara as Mrs. Lawty and Miss Martha McGhee as Mrs. Romney. Miss Ethel Bray was cast as Lady Bloshire and Miss Jane Losch as Clara the maid.

The last play, "Drums of Oude," by Austin Strong, was entirely different from the second, as was the second from the first, being the story of British troops in northern India in the spring of 1857. The scene is the interior of a palace occupied by the troops and the action centers around Captain Hector McGregor, and Mrs. Jack Clayton, sister of Lieutenant Alvan Hartley, best friend of Captain McGregor.

Romance Revived

Because of the fear of a massacre, Mrs. Clayton, an English woman is brought to the palace for protection, and the lifelong love of Captain McGregor for her is declared and accepted. As a last happy touch, the British troops, who have been telegraphed to come to the aid of the palace inhabitants, arrive and everything ends in true story fashion. The play was produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, of New York City.

The cast included Lowell Hablman as Captain Hector McGregor, John Hawlings, as Lieutenant Hartley, James Barker, as Sergeant McDougal, a kilt-wearing Scotchman Lowell Coulter, as Stewart the sentry, Miss Violet Doll, as Mrs. Jack Clayton, Robert Weber as a private and Gerald Shluraldecker and Powell Goerlich as two Hindustani servants.

The back drop used in "The Drums of Oude," was painted by R. E. Young, of the Myrtyl Ross Players. Costumes were from the Emilie Sullivan Co. of Columbus. The mottos in "Just Women" were painted by Robert Smith. E. H. Shade assisted as faculty business manager, Miss Priscilla Smith, wardrobe mistress, John Campbell, stage manager and William Howison, property manager.

Bottom Drops Out of Radio As Stock Goes Down 72 Points

BY W. S. COUSINS
I. N. S. Financial Editor

New York, Dec. 8—With a terrific thud that shook the stock market to its foundations, Radio Corporation stock crashed 72 points to 176 in a day of hectic selling in Wall Street—the third day of dizzy tobogganing.

More than 100 points has been clipped off of the market value of Radio Corporation stock in three days of the most disastrous selling seen in a highly excited market since the mad die of June.

Flooding of the market with selling orders for the over-ballooned Radio shares found little or no demand for the stock, and by successive stages it was jolted down the line for a sheer drop of 72 points, closing at the bottom.

It was evident, at the tap of the opening gong that something was amiss in the market position in Radio. The first block of stock sold at 261, a drop of seven points from the previous close, and pressing of the stock for sale showed clearly that there was little demand for Radio at anything approximating these prices.

The next wave of selling swept the stock down to 225, a sheer drop of 43 points for the first half-hour of trading, and of 105 points from the high of the move. Once again, the "big traders" and pools, which have been ballooning Radio stock, stood aside and made no effort to arrest the downward move.

In the ensuing struggle to unload, brokers milled around the Radio post screaming and gesticulating in a wild effort to execute their orders. Sheer drops of three to eight points between sales showed how little real demand there was for Radio outside of the speculative bunch that has been booming it to the skies, partly on the trapping of the shorts, and partly on the gullibility of outside trades. Radio, which never paid a penny of dividends, ballooned to 420 a share in less than a year.

Grain Market

TODAY'S REVIEW OF YESTERDAY'S GRAIN

Chicago, Dec. 8—The Chicago board of trade has suspended activities for today in order to move equipment to the temporary quarters at 453 South Clark st., where business will be resumed Monday. There will be a session of the cotton market in the new building owing to release of a government report. There will also be some trading in cash grain. Foreign exchanges and other domestic markets will be open as usual.

Bears had the edge of the trade in the final session in the old Chicago board of trade building yesterday. All the grains sold at lower prices for the balance of the day. Wheat and corn were very weak and there were sharp breaks at times. However, fair rallies near the close recovered a substantial share of the losses, which had carried prices to the low point for the week.

At the close wheat prices registered net losses for the day of ⅞@1c. Corn was 1½@5⅝c down, oats were ⅝@⅞c lower and rye was ⅞@1c down. Winnipeg futures were ⅛c lower at the finish.

Foreign markets were steady to a shade firmer, Liverpool closing 1-16@1-2d higher. Export news was a little more encouraging and there was nothing in the current news which suggested any reason to sell. The break appeared to come mainly because the market was tired. Longs have supported wheat in the face of the bearish statistics, but other than holding prices at about the same level as they were three months ago they have achieved nothing.

Light deliveries on December contracts so far, with a large open interest still in the delivery month and with some of the light deliveries coming back into the pit, has led to a growing belief that the market will be heavy for the remainder of this month, with probably declining prices.

However, as one grain dealer pointed out yesterday, the market will be in a much healthier state if prices stay at this level or below for the remainder of the month. Consumption is going on at a healthy rate and by the first of the year the natural bearishness created by the marketing of the heaviest part of the crop and the harvesting in Argentina is passed. With prices at or below this level there would then be a basis for constructive action.

Export sales yesterday were reported as 800,000 to 900,000 bu. Broomhall again stressed the fact that there are no exports from Russia and India and that the latter country would probably import a total of 30,000,000 bu rather than usual exports of 10,000,000 to 20,000,000.

Tired longs also sold corn in the early trade, but later there was some spreading between wheat and corn by the professional interest with the purchases in corn and the sales in wheat. This accounted to some extent for the fact that the late rally in corn was more than in wheat.

Country offerings were still light. Southwest markets were outbidding Chicago in its territory and there were reports that sellers of corn to exporters, unable to get the corn to fill their contracts, were asking for cancellation terms. Seaboard intimated some export sales, but no amounts were given.

Commission house and local selling appeared to be based mainly on the expectation that prices will not advance much with ideal weather and talk of larger movement.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Although retailers here stated early this week that cold weather would bring good business for dealers in fruits, vegetables and meats, no increase in sales has yet been reported.

In fact business on all retail produce markets here is exceedingly slow, according to reports today. Although all products are very good, consumers purchase only in small quantities.

A few Christmas trees are being offered for sale here by dealers who buy directly from Columbus wholesalers, but this Yuletide decoration has not yet appeared generally on the retail markets of the city. Wholesalers here have already received shipments of trees, however.

No price changes were reported on either fruits, vegetables or meats this morning.

ADOPTS UNIFORMS

New North Station at Boston Acts for All Employes

Boston—The "Red Cap," for years the symbol of the porter in the railroad terminals of the United States, Canada, South America and Europe, has been supplemented by bright blue caps, trimmed with buff as the uniform identification at the New North Station of the Boston and Maine here.

The caps will depart from the straight visored, straight sided top pieces that have been standard among porters for years, with a semi-formal military shape, more comfortable for the wearer.

All the forces at the New North Station will be in uniform hereafter. Ticket sellers, information clerks, and travel bureau men will wear blue serge coats with the insignia "B & M R R" on the lapel. White collars, black ties, and black shoes will be worn by all.

No one likes a sand papery tongue; neither does he like a velvety one.

FIGHT OVER POWER

Wisconsin Legislature to Stage Bitter Battle Election

Madison, Wis. — Regardless what recommendations the legislative interim committee on water power makes to the next legislature, the session is promised a bitter fight between utilities and the League of Wisconsin municipalities over the question of permitting cities and villages generally to go into the electric power business.

The legislative committee is now holding extensive hearings gathering evidence on the question of municipal ownership of light plants. The League and municipally owned plants in the state have presented their views to the committee and utilities will present their position on November 26 and 27.

Under the present system a utility serving a certain district has much of a monopoly of such business. Before a competing firm could start, either public or private, it would be necessary to show that such additional service is necessary.

12 PRICE CHANGES

Decline in Meat Quotations Feature Local Market This Week

Twelve price changes were reported on the local retail meat and produce market this week. Six of them were decreases and six were increases.

Meats showed a tendency to fall when six decreases were reported during the past week as compared to three increases. Two increases in the price of fruits and one in the quotations on vegetables were also reported.

Business was slow during the week, retailers report. Blame for the poor business was laid at the door of the changeable weather by local dealers in foodstuffs.

So far this season the temperature has not been low for a long enough period to materially affect business, according to retailers here.

BACK CLAIM

Scientists Who Upset Law of Gravity Say Theory Substantiated

London, Dec. 8—The claims of two scientists—British and Italian—to have modified, and even upset, the Newtonian Law of Gravity, have been challenged, but the Italian experimenter has made a statement which will be read with interest.

At Bologna this scientist, Signor Majorana said:

"I hope during the next year to be able to make a definite announcement of the results of my researches, which may open a new and fascinating field to speculation, both in physics and astronomy."

He said that his researches into what is known as the absorption of gravitation by interposed bodies had interested him for ten years.

Gravitation, he considered, must apparently suffer a reduction in force because it was passing through matter. He had obtained confirmation of their theory by many researches.

"This theory," he added, "would lead the the correction of Newton's Law of Gravity. Calculations would show that the sun, instead of having the mass which is generally accepted, would have a mass twice or even four times greater."

GAINS IN AUTOS

Britain Shows Increase in Number of Cars Used

London, Dec. 8—There is a motor vehicle for every twenty-one persons in Great Britain, according to figures in a return issued by the Ministry of Transport, which gives particulars of the taxation of road vehicles for period December 1, 1927 to August 31, 1928.

The total number of motor vehicles subject to taxation during that period was approximately 1,996,000. This figure, which excludes tramcars and trade licenses was an increase of 87,000 on the total up to May 31 this year.

The gross amount received in payment for licenses issued during the nine months covered by the return was $116,560,575 an increase of $17,336,570 on the receipts for the six months ended May last.

Motor vehicles registered for the first time during the three months ended August last numbered 76,478. This is a decrease of 30,571 compared with the figure for the three months ended May this year.

BILL CHARLES RAY, FILM ACTOR, HERE

Appears at Palace; Newspaper Yarn at Marion and Ross Players in "Meet the Wife"

Personal appearance of Charles Ray, one-time noted picture star, will feature Marion's theatrical program next week.

Ray appears at the Palace Thursday, Friday and Saturday in a vaudeville act. At the same time his latest picture, "Garden of Eden," is to be shown. All in all, it's a Ray program.

The Four Van Rippers, a minstrel act, heads the first half program at the Palace, opening Sunday. The picture is "The First Kiss," with Fays Wray and Gary Cooper.

The Marion has three pictures booked for the coming week. "Telling the World," a story of newspaper life and featuring William Haines and Anita Page, opens Sunday. The picture tells how a foreign correspondent saves the life of a cabaret dancer in China.

Norma Shearer is starred in a Bright comedy, "The Latest From Paris." The picture gives Miss Shearer an opportunity to wear plenty of smart clothes. It begins Wednesday. Friday finds the dog star, Flash, appearing in "Under the Black Flag."

At the Grand the Myrtyl Ross Players will continue their two-a-week policy. "Meet the Wife," a very successful comedy of several years ago, opens Sunday afternoon, while the last half offering will be "Some Baby." In "Meet the Wife" Myrtyl Ross has the role of the wife who lost her husband in the San Francisco earthquake and years later finds him again. And then she had remarried!

At the Oakland the program for the week will be: George Arthur and Karl Dane in "Baby Mine" Sunday; Red Grange and Walter Hiers in "The Racing Romeo," Monday and Tuesday, a benefit for the Glenwood Community club; "The City of Purple Dreams," Wednesday and Thursday; Patsy Ruth Miller in "The Red Riders of Canada," Friday and Saturday.

The Princess program Sunday will be "Frontier Buster" with Buddy Roosevelt.

If one doesn't find the straight and narrow path made attractive, he prefers something else.

The Low Price Filling Station developed a new method of merchandising gasoline. This Station is located on a railroad side track and eliminates the cost of tank wagon service and the expense of maintaining a retail station.

This method makes it possible for us to sell the same grades of gasoline at from 2 to 4 cents a gallon less than other companies who maintain bulk stations, tank wagon service and operate expensive retail stations.

In some cities, where we are operating, other companies conduct price wars, selling at lower prices than in localities where they have no Low Price Competition. The purpose of meeting our price is to drive us out of business in order that former high prices for gasoline may be charged. This proves that this station regulates the price of gasoline here.

No doubt, some other companies will follow our reduction in price because they can make up losses sustained here by high prices elsewhere. But motorists should remember that this independently owned station always sells gasoline at only two cents above the delivered tank car price instead of at from 4 to 5 cents above the delivered price which is the practice of other companies where there is no Low Price Station.
